ABSTRACT

The present disclosure relates to a system and method for controlling the presentation of advertisements. In one arrangement, the system and method are adapted to collect weather condition information, determine which advertisements are appropriate for presentation based upon the weather condition information, and facilitate presentation of appropriate advertisements.